INFORMATION REGARDING TAXATION
In which countries do you pay taxes deriving from income and assets?
The tax country is usually the country in which the person works or in which he/she has a permanent residence. A person may be liable to tax in multiple countries concurrently. For example, US citizenship (including dual or triple citizenship), a green card permit in the USA, residence in the USA or longer-term stay in the USA may cause tax liability to the USA. If you are uncertain in which countries you are liable to tax, we recommend that you contact your tax expert.
